

Mack Charges Plot to Seize Zionist Fund

Leader of Organization in America Says European Group Seeks to Dictate Uses of $100,000,000

Claims Money Is Insecure

Coup d'Etat Would Place It in Hands of Irresponsible Clique, He Asserts

CLEVELAND, June 5.—Julian W. Mack, president of the Zionist Organization of America, charged at that body's annual convention to-day that a small group of individuals had executed a coup d'etat in the World Zionist Organization and now were attempting another coup in the American organization—all in an effort to control the $100,000,000 fund which it was proposed to raise for the rebuilding of Palestine.

In his annual report Mr. Mack gave his version of the break between the administration of the American organization and Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, over the question of how the fund was to be raised and by whom it was to be disbursed. Adherents of both Mr. Mack and Dr. Weizmann are fighting for control of the convention.

Declaring it was imperative that the world organization impose standards and safeguards requisite for the handling of public funds, Mr. Mack said: "We have offered total cooperation in carrying out the Keren Hayesod (Palestine Foundation Fund), adapted to American conditions. This was refused us. We were told, nay, commanded, to accept the 'Keren Hayesod' as chartered in London on March 23, 1917, in favor of that treaty of the London resolutions (authorizing raising of the fund) that we have been directed to surrender our judgment as to what is right and practical in the United States with regard to the form of the fund, methods of raising the fund and the elementary standards and safeguards which the World Zionist Organization should adopt in order to carry out its responsibility."

Declares Group Uncontrolled
"It is to the small Keren Hayesod group, legally uncontrolled and without any real responsibility to the Zionist organization and its institutions to whom we are commanded to turn over the money," Mr. Mack charged. "The Jews for the upbuilding of Palestine. It is the coup d'etat brought about in the Zionist movement by this group which we are asked to underwrite. These things we could not do, either as officers of a federation whose rights are constitutionally guaranteed by the World Zionist Organization or as public servants of the American Zionist Organization, which are duties to those contributing to its solicitation."

Charges Coup d'Etat
"Instead of the sound, efficient and economic reorganization contemplated by the London conference, we have this disorganization, brought about by a coup d'etat."

Mack Faction Beaten
Peace between the two factions of the organization failed to materialize at the opening session of the convention. Judge Henry J. Dannbaum, of Houston, Tex., was elected chairman of the convention over Judge Mack.

The nominations brought forth a clash between Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Judge Bernard A. Rosenblatt, both of New York, which formed the feature of the stormy session. When interrupted while nominating Judge Mack, Dr. Wise reminded Judge Rosenblatt that "this is not a New York police court." Judge Rosenblatt retorted, "Neither is it a free synagogue."

Judge Mack, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the World Zionist Organization, and other speakers urged that there be peace between the two factions.

Martha Hedman, Swedish Actress, Becomes Bride

Marriage to Captain H. A. House Takes Place at Duluth, Minn.

DULUTH, Minn., June 5.—Martha Hedman, Swedish actress, was married at 4 o'clock this afternoon to Captain Henry Arthur House, of New York City, at the home here of Captain House's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House. Only immediate relatives of the bridegroom attended the ceremony.

Captain House and his bride departed to-night for New York City, from where they will sail Thursday for Europe. They are planning an extended stay in London and Stockholm. It is understood that part of the honeymoon will be spent with Mrs. House's parents in a little fishing village in Denmark.

Martha Hedman's theatrical career began in Sweden. Later she went to London and was sent to this country by Charles Frohman to play the leading feminine role in "The Attack." She has met with great success in America and has been starred in many big productions.

Captain House and Miss Hedman have been acquaintances for several years, having met shortly before he sailed for France in 1917.

Captain House served with the 350th Infantry of the 88th Division. He was six weeks a prisoner in Villingen, the Black Forest region of Germany, but escaped before the armistice. He was graduated from Columbia in 1906. His father, F. E. House, is president of the Duluth Iron Range Railroad and a well known steel financier.

300,000 Children Fed By Society in Year
Organization for Preventing Cruelty to Helpless Soon to Have Great Building

More than 18,000 complaints involving 54,000 unfortunate children were received by the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, 51 Irving Place, last year, according to the society's report which has just been issued. These included complaints regarding children neglected, abused or exposed, complaints against moving picture shows, applications for advice and shelter and children taken into custody under the delinquency laws.

The society has fed and clothed about 300,000 children pending the disposition of their cases by the courts and other authorities.

The year 1920 is regarded as epochal for the society, according to the report, because of the gift of Mr. and Mrs. August Hecksher, which will provide the largest building for the care of children in the world. The society and the Hecksher Foundation for Children will occupy the building to be erected on Fifth Avenue, between 104th and 105th streets, which will have every facility for care and recreation of children.

The society has outgrown the building at 297 Fourth Avenue and has leased the property at 214th Street and Bolton Road, Inwood, until the completion of the new building on Fifth Avenue.

Jewish Immigrants Praised
Theodore G. Risley, solicitor of the Department of Labor, in discussing immigration problems, declared that Jewish immigrants were the most useful and the most assimilated of foreigners.

Other speakers were Leon Kamak, first vice-president of the society; Harry Fischel, chairman of the building committee, who conducted negotiations for the purchase of the building; Albert Rosenblatt, Rabbi Herbert S. Goldstein, the Rev. Josef Rosenblatt, Leon Sanders, Jacob Masel, Isaac Siegel, Otto A. Rosalsky and Rabbi M. S. Margolies. Pupils of Public School 82 presented a tableau. Special exercises are to be given every day this week.

The society, founded in 1889, has more than 150,000 members.

Harding Opens Doors Here of Jewish Home

Governors of Twenty States Attend Dedication of Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Edifice

Tributes Paid Founders President, by Wire, Unlocks Portals and Sends Congratulatory Telegram

Tributes to Jewish Americans who came to this country as immigrants were paid by President Harding, the Governors of twenty states and other prominent men at the dedication yesterday of the new home of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America in the old Astor Library, 425 and 437 Lafayette Street.

The historic building near Astor Place, which had been bought from the New York Public Library Association for $325,000 and reconstructed at a cost of $300,000, was pronounced in readiness to take care of Jewish immigrants.

President Harding pressed a button which formally opened the doors. The President also sent a telegram, congratulating the society on its Americanization work. The President's telegram was greeted with cheers when it was read before several thousand persons who crowded the building.

"I wish to express to you my congratulations and good wishes on the occasion of the opening and dedication of the new home of your society. Your organization has for more than a score of years carried on a most useful, patriotic and humane service and I join with you in the hope that with the enlarged facilities you are now securing you will be able to expand and improve it. The charity and liberality of the Hebrew people have always been peculiarly notable and an inspiration to others. I want you to know of my earnest wish for the continuance and enlargement of the splendid work you have done."

In 1896 he became apprenticed to a cooper, learned the proper trade and took out his first union card. In the dock strike of 1889 he showed marked ability in the work of organization, and from then on took an active part in public affairs.

At the time of the strike he was Mayor of Poplar, Poor Law Guardian and a member of Parliament in 1903.

It was said of Will Crooks that no one ever doubted his word and that his promise was unbreakable. He was the friend of the poorest and never forsook his cockney manners. Among his warm friends he numbered all the Prime Ministers of recent years and King George himself.

The constant strain of the war shattered his health, as it did that of many another man engaged at home in building up the armies and increasing the production for the supply of the armies. He died finally, in 1917, he witnessed the killing of many little children in a school in Poplar by a bomb from a German aircraft, from the shock of which he never recovered.

He was forced to resign his seat in the House of Commons early this year and he was succeeded as the representative of Woolwich by Captain Gee, coalitionist, who was elected over the former chairman of the Labor party, James Ramsay MacDonald.

Testimony of Usefulness
"I am informed that the purchase of the building was made possible through gifts from persons who came to America as immigrants. It seems to me there could be no more emphatic testimony to the usefulness and effectiveness of your society's work for Americanization."

John L. Bernstein, in formally accepting the building as president of the society, enumerated the purposes for which it is to be used. The society, he said, exercises as much care to see that Jewish immigrants are suitable for American citizenship as it does to extend aid to them on their arrival.

"We welcome them upon their arrival, help them to reach their destination, obtain employment for them, show them how to become citizens, discourage ineligible from coming to this country and prevent them from becoming public charges," said Mr. Bernstein.

"From the moment the Jewish immigrant arrives to the time he has adjusted himself to his new surroundings the society seeks to stand by his side."

The fact that John Jacob Astor, after whom the building is named, found his first employment from an immigrant Jew was referred to by Oscar S. Straus as a poetic coincidence.

"There is a kind of logic in history," said Mr. Straus. "The fact that John Jacob Astor, who came to this country in 1793, found his first opportunity for his career of wealth by becoming an employee of a Jewish immigrant named Levy, from whom he learned the trade of furrier. The brethren of the immigrant who helped Astor now enter into possession of this building, which, perhaps, a Jewish immigrant helped to make possible."

Theodore G. Risley, solicitor of the Department of Labor, in discussing immigration problems, declared that Jewish immigrants were the most useful and the most assimilated of foreigners.

Other speakers were Leon Kamak, first vice-president of the society; Harry Fischel, chairman of the building committee, who conducted negotiations for the purchase of the building; Albert Rosenblatt, Rabbi Herbert S. Will Crooks, Labor Leader 20 Years in Parliament, Dies

English Cockney Lad, Reared in Workhouse, Was Friend of King and Statesmen; War Shock Broke Health

LONDON, June 5.—The Right Honorable William Crooks, who served as Labor member of Parliament for nearly twenty years, died to-day.

Will Crooks, as he was affectionately known, became one of the leaders in the great labor movement and one of the dominant figures in England. He was born in a London slum (Poplar) in 1852 and started work when only nine years old. His father had been injured when the boy was scarcely more than a baby, and the family was forced to move to the workhouse. But at the age of nine he picked up odd jobs about the docks and was soon supporting his mother.

In 1896 he became apprenticed to a cooper, learned the proper trade and took out his first union card. In the dock strike of 1889 he showed marked ability in the work of organization, and from then on took an active part in public affairs.

At the time of the strike he was Mayor of Poplar, Poor Law Guardian and a member of Parliament in 1903.

Dr. Baruch's Wish For Simple Funeral Service Observed

Presence of Representatives of Passing Generation Noticeable at Rites for Eminent N. Y. Physician

Simplicity characterized the funeral services yesterday for Dr. Simon Baruch, died on Friday afternoon at his residence, 51 West Seventy-seventh Street. They took place in the West End Synagogue, 180 West Eighty-second Street, Frederick De Sola Mendes, rabbi of the congregation and an old friend of Dr. Baruch, officiating.

Among those who assembled to pay their last respects to the eminent physician and statesman were many men and women of a generation fast vanishing. Many of them were aged and feeble. There were veterans of the Civil War and members of New York Camp Comfort, the veterans of America. Dr. Baruch had been a member of the latter organization from the date of its formation fifty years ago.

The camp was headed by Commander R. Keeler, Dr. Baruch's old friend, and the Rev. L. R. Schuyler, the latter chaplain of the camp.

These old friends, with the family and more remote relatives of the deceased, composed the congregation. Mrs. Baruch, the widow, is ill and could not attend the services. The four sons of Dr. Baruch, Hartwig R. Bernard M. Herman D. and William C. Baruch, were present. Mrs. Bernard Baruch is in Europe.

The wives of Dr. Baruch's other sons were present. Two daughters of Dr. Baruch, Mrs. M. Baruch and Amalie, and Bernard M. Baruch Jr. also attended. Others of the family in attendance were the two brothers of Dr. Baruch, Dr. Baruch and Nathan.

The services were held at the Hebrew cemetery permits. Gounod's "Funeral March" was played as the family entered the synagogue. Dr. Max Grauman sang the Adonai and Dr. Mendes offered a prayer and read the Fifty-first Psalm. Dr. Mendes in a brief address said that no eulogy would be pronounced, but the use of the expressed wish of the deceased.

The remains were taken from the synagogue to Mount Hope Crematory.

The young man studied chemistry, and when he was twenty years old went to Montgomery, Ala., to work for a cotton merchant.

Several years later, after he had gained experience in the cotton business, he went to Corsicana, Tex., as a correspondent of an English cotton journal. He was then in Corsicana, and it was removed later to Dallas. Mr. Wolff made his home in St. Louis, directing a branch office there, at 10th and 11th streets, New York, and the first office in New York, the Cotton Exchange Building ever since.
